PROFESSIONAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Oakland Township, MI (19,132 residents) – The Charter Township of Oakland is located in the northeastern Oakland County, Michigan. The population was 16,779 at the 2010 census and is currently estimated to be 19,132. Oakland Township is less densely populated than neighboring municipalities in southeast Michigan and retains many elements of a rural, wooded residential bedroom community. The Board hires the positions of Manager/Superintendent to facilitate the day-to-day business of the Township. Charter Township of Oakland Ordinance Number 97 (“Township Superintendent Ordinance”) provides the powers and duties of the Township Manager position; these duties include: manage departments and personnel, enforcement of laws, prepare and administer the Township budget and act as its purchasing agent. COMMUNITY BACKGROUND

Charter Township of Oakland is predominantly residential, with only 1% of its properties identified as commercial, industrial or agricultural for property tax purposes. Oakland Township is a low-density community, with two unincorporated communities. The Township offers residents convenient access to Metro Detroit attractions (professional sports teams, international airport, arts and cultural activities) while living in semi-rural surroundings. Oakland University and nearby downtown Rochester provide advanced learning opportunities and cultural amenities.

Oakland Township has the distinction of being one of Michigan's oldest townships. It was one of the original 25 townships in the Territory of Michigan when counties were further divided into townships in 1827. The Township is a complete 36 square miles. The Detroit and Bay City Railroad was built through the township in 1872 and established a “flag” station at Goodison. A branch of the Detroit (electric) Urban Railway was built through Goodison in 1900 and went north to Orion, Oxford, and Flint. A grist mill and mill race were built on Paint Creek in 1835. Later named Goodison Mill, it operated for more than 100 years before being dismantled in the late 1940s. The former site of the mill is the current location of Paint Creek Cider Mill, which is home to the Oakland Township Parks and Recreation, among other offices and a year-round Cider Mill/Restaurant.

The Township is served by three excellent school districts: Rochester Community Schools, Lake Orion Community Schools, and Romeo Community Schools. There are also two private schools within its municipal boundaries: Eagle Creek Academy and Living Word Lutheran School.

Dedicated funding for Parks and a Land Preservation Program have provided for significant parkland, open spaces and nature trails; and portions of a Metro Park, County Park and State Park are also located in the Township. Oakland Township enjoys an abundance of natural beauty in its streams and wetlands, woodlands, and meadows. Since 1975, the Oakland Township Parks and Recreation Commission has been preserving, through acquisitions and donations, over 1,000 acres of natural beauty parklands and miles of trails. These special areas offer township residents walking, hiking, biking, horseback riding and nature viewing throughout the changing seasons.

A rural setting, with close proximity to the urban centers of southeast Michigan, Oakland Township is unique in both its natural beauty and quality of life opportunities.
